

Contents

Chapter 1: The evolution of legal AI – past, present, and future

By Uwais Iqbal, founder, Simplexico

Chapter 2: Human judgment – the cornerstone of AI usage in the legal profession

By Colin Levy, director of legal, Malbek

Chapter 3: Safe, sustainable, and secure AI in law – hallucination or reality?

By Stephanie Goutos, head of employment law practice innovation, and Natalie Pierce, partner, Gunderson Dettmer

Chapter 4: The data drain – navigating copyright challenges in the era of AI

By Joanne Brook, solicitor (intellectual property and tech law), Lionshead Law

Chapter 5: Process before technology: the key to legal tech success

By Justin Turman, founder, Automate Office Work

Chapter 6: Managing expectations – key steps to maximizing AI's impact and achieving optimal outcomes

By Mark Gediman, senior research analyst, Alston & Bird

Chapter 7: The global impact of the European Union's AI Act on the legal profession

By Itsiq Benizri, counsel, WilmerHale

Chapter 8: Navigating regulatory frameworks – building ethical and compliant AI in the legal sector

By Harry Borovick, general counsel, Luminance

Chapter 9: Confidentiality in crisis – protective measures for client data

By Erick Robinson, partner, Brown Rudnick LLP

Chapter 10: Revolutionizing legal practice – AI, pricing strategies, and the equation shaping law firm operations

By Eugenia Frenzel, director of pricing and practice management economics, Perkins Coie

Chapter 11: The human side of legal AI – upskilling teams and enhancing work life in the legal profession

By Rasmus Kirkby Salling, head of commercial legal, and Peter Kaas, head of digital legal and compliance, Falck

Chapter 12: Building AI-ready legal teams – strategies for hiring and integrating external talent

By Matthew Dunne, senior innovation and data science manager, Katten Muchin Rosenman LLP

Chapter 13: Tech and law – how research prototyping drives GenAI adoption in legal practice

By Dr Megan Ma, associate director, Stanford Center for Legal Informatics

Chapter 14: AI and the legal profession – how today’s innovations shape tomorrow’s future

By Nicola Shaver, co-founder and CEO, LegalTech Hub