

Contents

Executive summary	vii
About the authors	xiii
Chapter 1: Client feedback has gone stereophonic: are you still listening in mono?	1
By Sally Dyson, director, Firm Sense Ltd
Introduction	1
How firms listen	2
Bringing it all together	13
Conclusion	15
Chapter 2: Client feedback – asking the hard questions to get the best results	17
By Will Taylor, senior client development manager, Wiersholm
Introduction	17
Why have a client feedback program?	17
Have a structured set of questions	19
Ask the hard questions	21
Go “off piste” when given the invitation	23
Ask the “hard” clients	24
Have the right person asking the questions	25
However you do it, make sure you act on the feedback	25
Conclusion	25
Chapter 3: Cultural shift or cultural shove? The challenges of the client journey in the post-pandemic era	27
By Yolanda Cartusciello, partner, PP&C Consulting
Client journeys in the pandemic and beyond	28
What the clients told us	29

- The shift versus the shove 30
- Client journey management 31
- Client journey mapping 31
- Inject client thinking into the client journey design process 33
- Identify new client needs and services 33
- Provide management committees with a powerful governance tool 33
- Conclusion 33

- Chapter 4: Client journey mapping as a source of sustainable competitive advantage 35
- By Andrew Hedley, Hedley Consulting*
- Setting the strategic context: what client journey mapping is and why it matters 35
- Client journey mapping as an integrative process 36
- Understanding touchpoints: necessary but not sufficient 39
- Stages of the client journey 40
- Using Servqual to understand and align brand promise with brand experience 43
- Taking things forward 46

- Chapter 5: Client loyalty – delivering exceptional client service 49
- By David H. Freeman, JD, CEO, David Freeman Consulting Group*
- Build long-term relationships 49
- Be highly responsive 50
- The new math 51
- Get on their turf 52
- Understand the client’s business 52
- Client feedback 53
- Client service teams 54
- The feedback process 55
- Annual client meetings 55
- End-of-matter reviews 56
- Mid-matter reviews 56
- Act on feedback 56
- Deliver added value 57
- ACC value challenge 57
- Work as a team 58
- Other techniques for delivering exceptional service 58

Chapter 6: Defining, measuring, and delivering a stellar client service strategy	61
By Kim Carr, lead partner of the wills, probate, and lifetime planning department, FBC Manby Bowdler LLP
Defining “stellar”	62
Bringing everyone on board	63
Sharpening the tools of our trade	64
Chapter 7: Optimizing client service in the post-COVID legal market ..	67
By Douglas McPherson, director, Size 10½ Boots Ltd
How do you provide the best possible client service?	69
How do you put the improvements you want to make into practice?	73
How do you ensure you are delivering the optimal levels of client service while working in a hybrid environment?	75
Chapter 8: Are automated assistants ready to optimize the next chapter of online client care?	77
By James Matthews, UK&I country manager, CM.com
Is LegalTech the springboard to a higher level of client service?	77
Where to start?	79
Virtual assistants – a simple starting point	80
How could a virtual assistant improve your client care?	82
How can virtual assistants be used to improve the way you market and the results your marketing achieves?	83
Chapter 9: Innovation as a business development strategy	87
By Scott Rechtschaffen, chief knowledge officer, Littler Mendelson
Law firm marketing approaches have evolved	87
Why innovation is relevant for today’s corporate legal clients	88
Innovation at Littler	89
The beginnings of innovation at Littler – knowledge management	89
Knowledge management as the foundation of a comprehensive content marketing strategy	90
How do we do it?	92
Innovative legal service solutions as a brand differentiator for Littler	93
Conclusion	96

Chapter 10: The LawNet Mark of Excellence – lessons for law firms	97
By Helen Hamilton-Shaw, member engagement and strategy director, LawNet
The LawNet Mark of Excellence	98
Cultural commitment	102
Rates of satisfaction	104
Learning lessons	105
Feedback from LawNet member firms on how they are making use of CX metrics to effect change	107
Chapter 11: Litigation management in a still uncertain world	109
By Paul A. Williams, partner and general liability litigation practice co-chair, Shook, Hardy & Bacon LLP
Pandemic litigation trends so far	109
What still lies ahead?	112
The litigation burden	112
The litigation management solution	113
The practice of successful litigation management	115
An opportunity to take control	117